listen all the way thru an album	go cloud-watching for 5min	pull a random book from the shelf	text someone a compliment out of the blue	lie on ur back and stare at ceiling write a haiku with non-dominant hand	cold call a long-lost friend	watch a pot boil	sketch something in ur room	pick up trash on ur block list every teacher u had K-12	mimic a nearby birsong		make a bouquet of weeds	stare at the lines of ur palm ride the train to a random stop	dance like no one's watching	stoop sit and watch the world	learn the names of ur elected officials	change the lighting play with fire	find a leaf & study its shape	talk to a stranger	make a paper airplane	tell ur houseplant a secret

THE REWIND ◀◀

Once upon a time, boredom was just part of the day -- a built-in pause between events, a mental rest stop. We dawdled. We daydreamed. We stared out bus windows. Over time, even the tiniest idle moment got colonized. Waiting in line? Scroll. Riding public transit? Scroll. Sitting on the toilet? Scroll harder. This week, Boredom Bingo will help you rediscover fun without a feed.
